Shanghai Tower is in Lujiazui Finance and Trade District of Pudong, in China. It is 632 metres high. It is the tallest building in China and the second tallest building in the world. It has 121 floors above ground and 5 podium floors. The total area of this tower is 410,000 square metres above grade. A local team of architects designed this building. The shape is interesting. The exterior of the building spirals upward like a snake. This is very important to a super tall building in Shanghai to withstand frequent typhoons. The building will be serviced with 149 lift. 108 are lifts. Three of the lifts can take passengers up to the 500-meter (about 1,640 feet)-high sightseeing platform from street level within one minute. It is a world record holder for a lifting service.

	There are 43 000 species of snails living in the sea or land. The first snails lived 550 million years ago on the seafloor. Then, around 286 million years ago, some moved onto land. Now they live everywhere: from deserts to tropics, from sea level to mountains, and in all parts of the world except Antarctica. Snails can live up to 5 to 10 years. Some of them live up to 15 years. The largest snail named Gee Geronimo was found in 1976. It weighed about 900g and measured 39.3 centimetres. Snails do not like hot and dry conditions. They like it moist or humid and not too bright. Snails move by using a large "foot" underside of their body. It travels about 15-17 centimetres per minute. Snails live in woodlands, ponds and flower and vegetable gardens. They stay under leaves and rocks.

Dolphins are intelligent, playful and friendly to people. Although they live in the water, they are mammals, not fish. A newborn dolphin is about three times as long as its mummy. A young dolphin is called a calf. A mother dolphin will stay with a calf for 2 to 3 years. Dolphins are social animals. They live and hunt in groups. They help other sick dolphins as often as they can. They communicate with each other with clicks and whistles. Dolphins eat meat. They eat fish and small sea animals. They don't chew their food. They use their teeth to catch their prey. Dolphins can jump as high as 6 metres out of the water. Some of them can dive as deep as 300 metres. Dolphins have large and complex brains. They are as intelligent as dogs. They can learn anything fast. They are able to learn a human sign language. Dolphins have a blowhole on top of their heads and use it to breathe. Dolphins can see and hear very well.
